A : I went scuba diving for the first time last week.

B : What was it like?

A : It was amazing. When I dived () the surface of the water, it's like a whole new world.

A : I think this year, we need to put our focus on developing the product instead of promoting it. Are you () me, William?

B : I'm afraid, no. I believe promoting is way more important than the product itself. What's the point of having a good product but no one knows about it.

A : Look, I know tomorrow is the shooting for the commercial. But I have to postpone it for two days. I am just not ready.

B : Seriously?! You never play () the rules.

A : Ma'am. We have a new system that requires you to put the borrowed book back on the shelf yourself.

B : I don't know where this book should go.

A : That book goes () the category 'historical novels'.

A : I just got promoted to director of the sales department.

B : Congratulations! If it's not too rude for me to ask, what rank is a director?

A : A director is () a vice-president in the company.
