

A : I impulsively bought a shirt last week.
But I don't want it anymore.

B : Why don't you () it () ? As long as it's unused and within 2 weeks, you can return it.

A : I like Stan's presentation. His idea is quite new and fascinating. But he's not good at time management.

B : I know what you mean. At some points, he spoke so fast that it's hard to () () what he said.

A : I think she looks slimmer these days.

B : No doubt she has () a lot of weight () .

A : Did you hear our company is going to () () five new staff next year?

B : Sure, I did. And I look forward to having some of them on our team.

A : Why did you say such a thing?
You hurt my feelings badly.

B : Oh, I'm so sorry. I didn't mean to.
I () () what I said.
It's my fault.

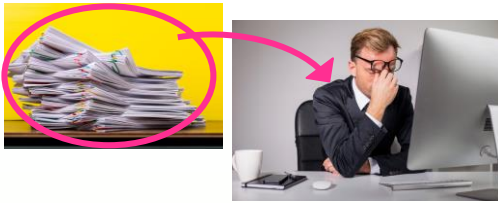

A : Well, for me, design-wise, I like this suit. But I feel it's a bit loose around here.

B : How about we () () about two centimeters here?

A : Let's eat something before getting on the plane.

B : Sure. But we need to eat fast. The plane's going to () () in 30 minutes.

A : Takashi, are you all right?
I ask because you look so exhausted.

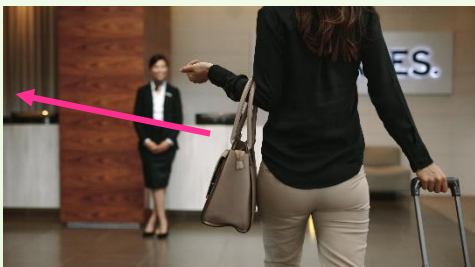

B : Do I? Really? I didn't know that.
But you may be right.

A : You may be overloading yourself with work. My advice is, "Don't () () more than you can do."

A : This is an old song. It was really popular in the 60s.

B : Yeah. Listening to it really () me () to my youth. Those were the days when I was young and carefree.

A : Good morning. I have a reservation for two nights.

B : Yes. Please follow our staff. She will () you () .

A : Thank you for coming to the interview.
Please take a seat.

B : Thank you. Do I need to () my mask () ?

A : I'm sorry the bus is full.
It can't () () more passengers.

B : But I have to get on this bus.
I'm late for work and the next bus is in 20 minutes.

A : I remembered something. I borrowed five books due tomorrow. What should I do?

B : Oh, you should () them
() to the library right away
before you forget.

A : That IT company managed to () () a lot of money in the last campaign.

B : How much did they earn?

A : You do look miserable. I think you should go see your doctor.

B : You think so? Maybe I need to () a day () tomorrow.

A : A month ago, our boss would have given the greenlight to our plan for the new project.

B : But the situation begins to () () a new aspect now, so he might not like it.

A : How is your girlfriend Naomi doing? I heard you guys had a fight.

B : She left me. I kept messaging her, but I don't think she would ever () me () .

A : I just got an offer to be a secondary distributor for supplemental nutrition drinks.

B : Are you sure it's legal? Be careful not to be () () by their sweet words. It could be a pyramid scheme.

A : How do you like the hair length?

B : It looks good. But could you () a little more () at the back?

A : Tetsuya started playing tennis during the lunch time break.

B : He did? Did he improve?

A : As far as I know, he's just a beginner, but he wants to () () someone who is better than him.

() () your ring.

How about we () () about two centimeters here?

The plane's going to () ()
in 30 minutes.

I'm sorry the bus is full. It can't () () more passengers.

You should () five books
() to the library right away
before you forget.

Please follow our staff.
She will () you () .

She () () her make-up.

The situation begins to () () new aspect now, so he might not like it.

Listening to this old song really () me () to my youth.

He spoke so fast that it's hard to () () what he said.

No doubt she has () a lot of weight () .

I've () () a new hobby.

Why don't you () it () ?
As long as it's unused and within 2 weeks, you can return it.

Count the calories you ()
() .

Could you () a little more () at the back?

Did you hear our company is going to () () five new staff
next year?

She left me. I kept messaging her,
but I don't think she would ever () me () .

Are you sure it's legal? Be careful not to be () () by their sweet words.

Do I need to () my mask
() ?

Tetsuya is just a beginner, but he wants to () () someone who is better than him.

Oh, I'm so sorry. I didn't mean to.
I () () what I said.

That IT company managed to ()
() a lot of money in the last campaign.

Maybe I need to () a day () tomorrow.

My advice is, "Don't () () more than you can do."